THE PRESIDENTS CORNER

During the month of March, I celebrated my 65th birthday. Admittedly, and humorously, I have wanted to be 65 for a quite some time solely for the option of being Medicare eligible! Ironically, today the internet led me to an article discussing "Late Adulthood" in which late adulthood was defined as the age of 60 and onward. Suddenly I was faced with the reality that I had entered this stage called "late adulthood" five years ago! Shouldn't I have been notified? What happened to the "Golden" years? Good grief! The author went on to suggest that during this stage of adulthood, one might give thought as to what their legacy might be for future generations. What will be the gift that we leave? A legacy gift does not necessarily signify money and, in fact, can take on many forms of "gifting".

A couple of weeks ago, I was in the sanding room when Jim Kilton entered through the plastic curtain. Somewhat surprised to see a woodturner enter the sanding room, I immediately noticed that Jim was accompanied by a younger man who was introduced to me as his grandson. My first thought was how wonderful it is for Jim to have the luxury of mentoring a grandson while building a project at the guild. During our conversation, I learned that Jim has two grandsons who are now members of the guild. Proudly, Jim is mentoring both grandsons, Jared Kilton and Casey Woody, on individual projects. How heartwarming it was to witness Jim as he poured his passion for woodworking into his grandsons by gently teaching and coaching them, leaving a legacy that will not be forgotten by Jared or Casey.

Legacy gifting can also take on the form of a "Work legacy" in which someone is observed by others as being consistently reliable, trustworthy, and faithfully fulfilling a role. That is the type of legacy that Bill and Marge Brett have gifted the guild. For the last ten years, on a weekly basis, Bill and Marge have quietly entered the guild, collected the money/charge slip envelopes from the depository, and participated in the accounting of guild funds...no fanfare or expectation of being highlighted, but faithfully performing a duty within the guild that few would even know about. We are grateful to Bill and Marge for their dedication and time spent at the guild and we will perhaps never know how many people they have influenced in their unselfish gift of time to the guild.

While many of us may not have the luxury of mentoring a grandchild in woodworking, there is no end to the ways that our members can, and do, give back to the guild. I would again encourage you to find a place to jump in. What will be your legacy?

Election Results

At the May Membership Meeting, there were three At-Large positions of the Board that were up for election. For the first time in the history of the guild, we had seven nominees to fill the three positions. The membership elected Jon Rauschenbach (who is currently serving the Board), Charlie LeGrand and Bill Schmidt to be the At-Large Members for the term that begins September 1, 2022. The Board thanks all of the members who put forth their name for consideration. Each nominee was a member who has greatly served the guild in years past and we are grateful for your contributions to the guild. Please join me in congratulating first-time GWG Board members, Charlie and Bill.

Please be reminded that your Board of Directors does not meet in secrecy or withhold the sharing of information. Any member of the guild is allowed to observe Board meetings. Members are not allowed to participate in the discussions or deliberations and may only address the Board if invited to do so with a majority vote of the Board members.

GUILD HISTORY

Aubrey Rogers

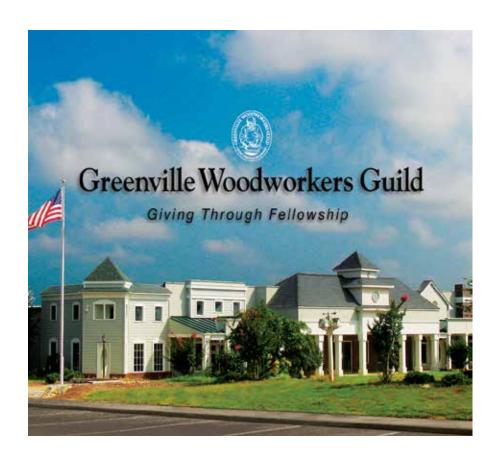

*Part 22*June 2022

In June 2012, the annual sawmill cookout featured Philip Dean and his Woodmiser and Tommy Thompson cooking the chicken. In those days members were asked to bring salads, fruit, bread, casseroles, and deserts, and of course logs. Entertainment was provided by Pacesetters Square Dance Club, one of the largest in the state with 75 members.

The Spartanburg Art Museum is hosting an exhibit of Michael McDunn's furniture pieces from work produced in 1982 - 2011. It includes an opening reception and gallery talk, and as part of the show Michael will be giving a demonstration at the museum on Sunday June 3: inspiration!

Steve Padula, shop superintendent, describe the procedure followed by the 38 supervisors currently manning the shop. Taking holidays into account supervisors covered 94% of the shifts scheduled from September to May. We have a group of men and women who not only dedicate their time supervising several shifts each month, but also attend a monthly supervisors meeting, ironing out any problems and filling out the schedule.

The May speaker was excellent, Scott DeWard, Gluing Techniques. Highlighted were many types of glue, he showed how they are applied, and more importantly how they are clamped, using such things as rubber bands and many forms of clamps, some hand made.

Mark Adams -master instructor, comes to the GWG in August. There are sixteen Guild Associate Members. Steve Padula stepped down as Secretary due to his appointment as Shop Superintendent. Fifteen members joined the Guild in the past two years.

From the Presidents Corner, Buzz Sprinkle summarized the activities of the various officers that makes the Guild run smoothly. He said, "the Greenville Woodworkers Guild is truly an amazing organization:" It is obvious from his detailed description of each position there is a lot of work that goes into keeping us operational. Buzz put the committee in place that created our organization that we continue to use today.
